

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

P R E F A C E.

The second volume of the Plymouth Records is published by authority of a vote of the Town of Plymouth, passed at its annual meeting held on the 17th of March, 1890 :

“ That the committee on the publication of the Town Records be authorized to continue the publication through a second volume, and as much farther as they think expedient until otherwise ordered by the Town.”

The first volume of three hundred and thirty-six pages included the first volume of the original records and ninety-eight pages of the second, and closed with the record of the town meeting held May 21st, 1705. The present volume of three hundred and fifty-two pages includes the remainder of the second volume of the original records, and one hundred and four pages of the third. Its contents are devoted chiefly to records of meetings, grants of land, the laying out of streets, and to votes relating to the prudential affairs of the town.

The first volume closed with records made by Elder Thomas Faunce, to whom reference was made in the introduction to that volume. He held the office of town clerk until the 2d of March, 1723-4, when at the age of 77 he was superceded by John Dyer, after a service of thirty-nine years.

John Dyer served from March 2d, 1723-4, until March 3d, 1739-40, with the exception of the year beginning March 1, 1732-3, during which the office of clerk was held by Gershom Foster. Mr. Dyer, born in 1671, was probably the son of John Dyer of Weymouth. He came to Plymouth in 1698, and in that year bought of William Bradford, the son of Governor Bradford, the lot of land on the southeasterly side of Leyden Street, on which the house with a brick end stands opposite the Universalist Church. The lot is described in the deed as running on the street northeasterly "as far as the northeasterly corner of the old store house which formerly stood on the lot." By this deed the precise location is defined of probably one of the earliest structures of the Colony. Mr. Dyer taught school in Plymouth during a few months in the year 1700, and became a prominent and valuable citizen. He was a member of the board of selectmen from 1709 to 1734 inclusive, town treasurer from 1701 to 1732, and occasionally served as moderator at town meetings.

Gershom Foster was chosen clerk March 1, 1732-3, and served one year. He was the son of John and Hannah (Stetson) Foster, and was born in 1709. At the age of twenty-four he was chosen clerk, and at the same time served as town treasurer.

Edward Winslow was chosen town clerk March 3, 1739-40, and held office until January, 1741-2. He was subsequently a member of the board of selectmen from 1757 to 1765 inclusive, town treasurer in 1760, and occasionally a moderator. He was a son of Isaac, grandson of Josiah, and great grandson of Edward Winslow, of the Mayflower. General John Winslow was his brother. Before the revolution he held the office of collector of Plymouth, register of wills, and clerk of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas. As a loyalist, he was deprived of his offices in 1775, and for several years afterwards lived in reduced circumstances in the house on North Street, built by him, and now known as the Winslow House. In December, 1781, he was permitted to go to New York, and reached the British garrison there with a part of his family, the remainder afterwards joining him. Sir Henry Clinton allowed him a pension of two hundred pounds per annum, with rations and fuel, and on the 30th of August, 1783, he embarked for Halifax, with wife and daughters and three black servants, where he arrived on the 14th of September, and died in 1785. His estate in Plymouth, valued at fifteen hundred pounds, was taken in 1782, on executions by the town of Plymouth, Thomas Davis, William Thomas, Oakes Angier, and John Rowe, of Gloucester, and sold by them by deeds, dated in 1782, 1789, 1790, and 1791, to Thomas Jackson. His son Edward, born in 1746, graduated at Harvard in 1765, and besides the office of naval officer of Plymouth, held jointly with his father the offices of clerk of the court and register of wills. A loyalist, also, he joined the British in Boston and went to Lexington with Lord Percy on the memorable 19th of April. He was appointed by General Gage collector of Boston and register of wills for Suffolk County. At the evacuation of Boston he went to Halifax, and was there appointed by Sir William Howe secretary to the board of general officers, with Lord Percy president, for the distribution of donations to the troops. He afterwards returned to New York, and was appointed muster master general of the British forces, and remained in America in that capacity during the war. After the declaration of peace he joined his father in Halifax, where he remained until after the death of his father in 1785, when he removed to Frederickton, New Brunswick, and died in 1815.

Of Samuel Bartlett, who held the office of town clerk from January, 1741-2, until March, 1766, little is known, except that he was born in 1688, and was the son of Benjamin, and grandson of Robert Bartlett, who came in the Ann in 1623. His son Samuel, was an enterprising merchant in Plymouth many years, and grandfather of Capt. Joseph Bartlett, whom older readers will remember as one of Plymouth's most active and enterprising citizens.

¹ In the early days of the Plymouth Colony there were three ways across Jones River, viz: the "wading place," near the present almshouse; the "stepping stones," not far from the present wharf below the outlet of Stony Brook; and the ferry, near the mouth of the river. In 1639 a bridge was built at the "wading place" in the line of the "Massachusetts Path." At a later date a bridge was built at the "stepping stones." In 1708 a bridge was ordered to be built where the present bridge stands, and the highway was laid out to cross it. At the same time the old bridge at the "wading place" was ordered to be taken down. The old bridge, however, was repaired, and the new bridge was not built to take its place until about 1715. About that time the bridge at the "stepping stones" was burned, and it was never rebuilt.

¹“Lawful money” and “old tenor” at that date were synonymous terms, meaning the bills of credit issued by order of the General Court of the Province. The value of this currency as compared with sterling varied. In 1739 it was as five to one, in 1748 it was as ten to one, and in 1756 it was four to one. Paper money called bills of credit were issued by the Massachusetts colony, and their issue was continued by the Province of Massachusetts Bay until 1749, when specie payment was resumed and no more paper money was issued by Massachusetts until the revolution. On the 4th of December, 1716, it was ordered by the General Court that one hundred thousand pounds of these bills be issued and distributed among the counties according to their last province tax, and that five trustees be appointed by the Court for each county to let out the money on sufficient security, at interest not exceeding five per cent. At various other times these bills were issued for the payment of public debts. On the 31st of March, 1721, it was voted by the General Court, “Whereas, the public bills of credit on this Province, which for want of silver have for many years not only answered the charge of this his Majesty’s government, both in war and peace, but served as a medium of exchange in the merchandise, trade and business of the Province, are grown scarce in proportion to the great demand for the same—that fifty thousand pounds of public bills of credit be issued and placed in the hands of the Treasurer of the Province, who is directed and empowered to distribute the same to the several towns within this Province according to each town’s respective proportion to the last Province tax; and that the several towns within this Province which shall receive their respective parts of the said sum of fifty thousand pounds, may by their trustees let out the same at interest on good real estate or personal security, or otherwise make improvement thereof as they shall judge most beneficial and advantageous for them.” This act explains the repeated references in the text to the town’s share of money received from the Province.
